DIME NOVEL SKETCHES #5

PAUL JONES WEEKLY

A continuation of the Red Raven Library which had been reprinting stories from the English "Red Rover." To my knowledge all the Paul Jones stories are new. Published by the Winner Library Co. (Street & Smith), September 30, 1905, to February 3, 1906. It lasted 19 numbers and although the first 18 are rare, No. 19 ranks with the rarest of colored covered issues. Evidently it was not distributed to the newsstands and a few copies found their way into collectors' hands when S&S sold out their stock years later. No. 20 was advertised but was never published.

THE RALPH ADIMARI PSEUDONYMS

Edited by Ralph Adimari

The following nom de plumes were found during a thirty year research of American literature. Many I found have since been lost, some I gave to others but the bulk of them are here listed. Some of these do not belong to me but then the attempt to give them a more proper owner would be a task almost for a minor encyclopedia. Even the attempt to give the source of my information would be a formidable job so all I can say is if anyone should want more knowledge, ask me. There are pseudonyms of Poe and Whitman gadding about but it requires not only work but finances to uncover them.
